

Announcement: Infosys Invests in Whoop

Bangalore – December 14 2015: Infosys (NYSE: INFY), a global leader in consulting, technology, outsourcing and next-generation services, today announced that it has made an investment of $3M in WHOOP, an early stage company offering a performance optimization system for elite professional sports teams.

WHOOP's system includes a device worn by athletes on their wrist that continuously measures key strain and recovery variables, and actionable analytics powered by proprietary algorithms that generate intensity and recovery scores. This enables athletes and coaches to gain visibility into the drivers of high performance, guide training and make optimal game day decisions.

The investment will be completed by December 16, 2015.

Disclosure under SEBI Listing Regulation-

Investment	WHOOP, Inc.
Name of the target entity	WHOOP Inc, a Delaware Corporation, is an early stage company offering a performance optimization system for elite professional sports teams
Whether related party transaction(s) and whether the promoter/ promoter group/ group companies have any interest in the entity being acquired?	No
Industry to which the entity being invested into belongs	Sports Tech, Wearables
Objects and effects of the investment	WHOOP offers a highly differentiated performance optimization and analytics solution that is of strategic importance to Infosys in the professional team sports and connected wellness markets
Any governmental or regulatory approvals required	None
Indicative time period for completion	Expected to be completed on December 16, 2015
Nature of consideration	Cash
Cost of investment	USD 3 million investment in Series B Preferred
Percentage of shareholding	A minority holding, not exceeding 20% of the outstanding share capital of the company
Brief background	Originally incorporated on December 31, 2011 with presence in the US

