Tax sops ar listing of green bonds to afforda

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA Mumbai, April 30

A LARGE NUMBER of big corporates and reputed developers are entering the affordable housing segment, attracted by huge tax benefits and reforms initiated by the government, eminent banker Deepak Parekh has said.

He also expressed hope that real estate prices would decline more once RBI allows banks and housing finance firms to lend to developers for land purchases and approval processes for projects are further streamlined and shortened.

Lauding the NDA government for coordinated efforts of the Prime Minister's Office with various ministries and departments on the 'Housing for All by 2022' mission, Parekh said this has been one of the main promises made by Prime Minister Narendra Modi and several steps have been taken, especially this year, to achieve this goal.

"I will call this year's Budget an 'affordable housing budget'. I am very excited about housing growth in India in next 3-5 years and I have never been so enthused about it," Parekh told PTI in an interview.

Parekh, chairman of housing finance major HDFC, said the government is focusing on 'practical and realistic steps" ceived comments from the MNRE, while the inputs from the ministry of environment, forest and climate change were received earlier, the official added.

A green bond is like any other debt instrument issued by an entity for raising funds from investors.

However, what differentiates it from other bonds is that the proceeds are ear-marked for use towards financing green
