Increasing Importance of Emerging Markets

►► From Page 1

It contributed Euro12.5 billion to its total sales in 2016 when refreshments accounted for Euro 10 billion. Together, these would have a 43% share in total sales. Unilever is merging the two businesses in a bid to unlock expansion opportunities and grow margins faster. Paranjpe is currently Unilever's president for the homecare business, which reported Euro 10 billion of revenue last year. The new appointment is effective January 1, 2018, a Unilever spokesperson said. At Reckitt Benckiser, Kapoor will move to the US and report to its India-born chief executive Rakesh Kapoor. The elevation of Indian executives reflects the increasing importance of the country and other emerging markets for multinationals as markets in the West have stopped growing. India particularly is an important destination for these companies, given its prime demographics and faster population growth.

The number of Indian leaders at global consumer goods companies has been increasing steadily. Unilever has more than 200 Indian managers at global level as the company tries to win consumers in emerging markets.

Paranjpe, who joined Unilever's Indian unit Hindustan Lever (now Hindustan Unilever) in 1987 as a management trainee, has risen rapidly through the ranks. He was the youngest CEO at the Indian unit of the consumer giant.
