Michael Reh, Executive Vice President and CEO (designate), Infosys

“Rapid digitization and escalating customer expectations have made omnichannel banking a strategic focus area for banks globally. Over the years, we have consistently invested in building a robust omnichannel banking solution that helps banks serve customers seamlessly across channels. Our solution helps banks deliver an engaging banking experience to its retail, corporate and SME customers, across devices of their choice. We feel this recognition further reinforces Finacle's leading position among the banking platforms globally."

Referring to Infosys, Jost Hoppermann, Vice President and Principal Analyst, Forrester writes in the report, "Infosys combines various elements of its portfolio into a leading solution. The solution offers comprehensive business capabilities without gaps. It supports a high number of channels, different types of mobile channels, gamification, and mobile wallets. Social channels see particularly sophisticated support. The omnichannel banking solution leverages solid product architecture to provide a basis for flexible CX. Product strategy is well defined without any true gaps."
