MANAGEMENT DISCUSSION AND ANALYSIS

Economy - Overview

The spectacular performance of the industrial sector and the services sector in the fourth quarter of the fiscal year 2009-10 helped the economy to register an overall GDP growth of 7.4% as against a growth of 6.7% in the previous fiscal. The industrial sector led the way with a growth of 9.27% during the financial year 2009-10 while the services sector was not far behind with a growth of 8.53%. However, growth in Agriculture was a mere 0.22% owing to decline in food production. There was a revival in the six core infrastructure industries as well with the upswing in this sector being spurred by higher growth in production of steel, coal, electricity generation and cement.

According to official data, the country's fiscal deficit stood at 6.7% of the country's economic output consequent to increasing expenditure and falling revenue.

With the buoyancy in industrial output, exports and growth in consumer durables, fuelling an impressive GDP growth at 9% in the first quarter of the current fiscal, the outlook for the economy in 2010-11, given normal monsoon and the continuation of the stimulus packages, appears extremely encouraging.

Industry scenario

Despite the widely published impact of global melt down elsewhere in the world, the growth of cement industry in India was upbeat registering double digit growth during the year under review defying the prediction of troubled times for the industry. Based on the available information furnished by Cement Manufacturer's Association, the all India clinker production was up by a healthy 13.4% while cement production was up by 12.4% with the industry operating at close to 85% of the capacity. The domestic consumption of cement in the country grew significantly by 12.8% for the year ended 31st March 2010.

The growth in the markets where the company will be serving has grown at over 10% during last year. There is also significant increase in capacities which has resulted in softening of prices. It is expected that it may take atleast 4 to 6 quarters for the country as a whole to reach a balance in terms of supply demand and the cement prices during this period will depend on the growth in the market and the matured behaviour of the players.

Opportunities, Threats, Risk and Concerns

The growth of the industry has been upbeat during last year with a capacity utilization of 85%. Though the economy showed signs of slow down in the early part of the year, it posted a remarkable recovery, thanks to the inherent strength of the economy and revival of the infrastructure industry and improvement in industrial production. With the outlook of a 10% growth rate in the 12th plan period and with more investments in the infrastructure sector, the industry can expect buoyancy to continue in the medium term. However, significant portion of the balance of capacities announced earlier are on the anvil and this is likely to have an impact on the cement prices in the short term; but with the anticipated boost to the infrastructural developments such as roads, ports and mega power plants and with the revival of the global economy as being witnessed, the demand supply imbalance for the country as a whole could get corrected in about a year, which augurs well for the industry. To overcome the bottlenecks in the availability of power posed through restrictions from grid supply, the company, as part of the project, is setting up a 20 MW captive thermal power plant. The company has also taken steps to secure long term agreement for supply of fly ash for maximizing blended cement production. The company will be largely benefited with the support from the holding company, namely The India Cements Limited, which will help in acquiring coal for both power plant as well as for cement manufacturing.

Outlook

Based on the announcements and projections of the Planning Commission and ADB, the Indian economy is better placed to grow at over 8% in the medium term despite the relatively nil growth or recessionary trends elsewhere. The economy is driven by self-consumption and growth in fundamental sectors of industry, agriculture and services. Even during the difficult times in the previous year, the industry was not affected by the economic slow down and registered a growth of over 8% in 2008-09 and over 12% in 2009-10. Since economic growth is driven more by development of infrastructure and housing, it has a direct link to the cement consumption which has grown at more than 100% of the growth in GDP. With this sustained growth in cement consumption and with part of the new capacities having already been absorbed in the market place, the industry will be poised to register significant strides with improved returns despite marginal aberrations in prices during commissioning of new capacities in 2010-11.

The company is in the process of commissioning the cement plant and as of date is not engaged in the manufacture of any product.
