Soon get your cryptocurrency at nearby ATM kiosk

Unocoin sets up its first kiosk where bitcoins, other virtual currencies can be traded using cash

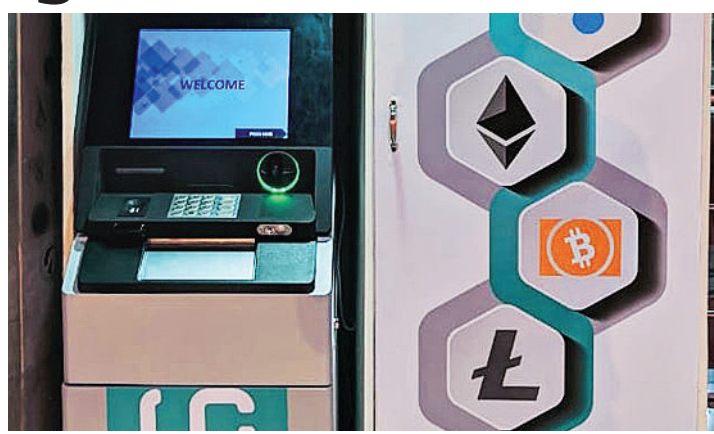

VIRESHWAR TOMAR
New Delhi, 19 October

Even as the legal uncertainty on crypto currencies looms in India, crypto currency exchange Unocoin has launched its first ATM in Bengaluru. Through this ATM, traders can deposit physical cash (in rupees) in their crypto wallet and can trade in bitcoin and other cryptocurrencies.

If a trader wants to get some cash, he just needs to sell his crypto currencies on the Unocoin platform, and he would be able to withdraw the money from this ATM. Unocoin has found this workaround after the Reserve Bank of India (RBI) in April banned banks and all entities it regulates from dealing with or providing services to any individual or business entities dealing with or settling virtual currencies. By setting up an ATM that accepts and dispenses cash, Unocoin has circumvented the RBI rule.

Unocoin said, "Owing to the RBI's recent notification on 'prohibition on dealing in virtual currencies', our banking relationships were disrupted some time ago. Since then, we were in the process of deploying new mechanisms for rupees deposits and withdrawals. Now we are here with the implementation of kiosk."

"Our ATMs are capable on accepting and dispensing the cash. Through Unocoin ATM, traders can deposit rupees within some limits. At the same time, they can withdraw their money," Sathvik Vishwanath, Co-founder and

BUY AND SELL VIRTUAL CURRENCIES

- First ATM installed in Bengaluru
- Buy/sell crypto coins using physical cash
- Minimum amount of ₹1,000 required for deposit and withdrawal
- Money can't be deposited through credit or debit card
- Unocoin exchange facilitates trading in 30 different crypto currencies
- After Diwali, Unocoin to set up ATMs in Delhi and Mumbai

CEO of Unocoin told Business Standard. He said the ATM was functional and available for trading crypto currencies.

How it works

"We are installing the same ATM that banks use. We just modify its software to connect it with our server to reflect the transaction," said Vishwanath.

To deposit rupees into the crypto account, a user would log in to the Unocoin account on the ATM, confirm account details and deposit the money into the ATM. The Unocoin account is updated instantly, and can be used to buy any cryptocurrency.

The user can also withdraw the money that he obtains by selling crypto assets. For withdrawal, users will have to make a request by visiting the exchange website or mobile app, where the desired withdrawal amount is specified. The 12-digit reference number from exchange is sent to the user. The user would then visit the Unocoin ATM to enter the reference number and OTP to withdraw the money. Unocoin has said minimum amount for deposit and withdrawal is ₹1,000 and must be in multiples of ₹500. Users are subject to some limits on deposit and withdrawals per transaction and per-day subject to cash handling restrictions in India. These are still early days and Unocoin will need to find the right amount of cash in the ATM. If there is less deposit and more withdrawal, "it will come to a situation where cash is not available in the ATM," said Vishwanath. "In the other case, when deposits are too many and withdrawals are less, we are planning to hire a cash management service or agency," he added.

Legal validity

According to the RBI directions, banks and other financial entities cannot provide any service to cryptocurrency dealers or traders. Kashif Raja, co-founder of Crypto Kanoon, a blockchain and cryptocurrency legal advisory platform, said recent step taken by Unocoin seemed to be legal but "we have to wait and watch".

"As a regulator, RBI directs banks and other entities to stop services with persons or agencies, who are dealing with crypto assets. Unocoin is not using any banking channel for this process," said Raja. He said, by law, a person can transact in cash as long as it is under ₹200,000 and Unocoin too cannot exceed this limit, else legal action can be taken against the exchange.

However, if there are more deposits than withdrawals, the exchange would need to deposit the cash in a bank account and then the bank can ask the source of the deposited money. Vishwanath said owing to less liquidity in crypto market, such a situation was possible. "We are working on it," he said. Post RBI ban, many exchanges are working on other solutions. Some exchanges have also started peer to peer trading on their platforms. Unocoin is also planning to install these ATM in Delhi and Mumbai in couple of weeks.

Train mows down 58 people in Amritsar

72 hurt in biggest such mishap in the recent past

SHINE JACOB
New Delhi, 19 October

At least 58 people were killed and 72 injured on Friday after a crowd of Dussehra revellers that had spilled onto railway tracks while watching burning of Ravana effigy was run over by a train near in Amritsar's Joda.

All services on Jalandhar-Amritsar route remained suspended three hours after accident, a railway official said. While some trains are being diverted, many are stationed near Jalandhar.

This is not a one-off incident in the railways. According to statistics, over 45 people, on an average, die every day on the rail tracks in India. According to official figures, in the last three years (between 2015 and 2017), at least 49,790 persons lost their lives after being hit by trains. Friday's accident is considered to be the biggest such mishap in the recent past, when the Nakodar to Jalandhar DMU train mowed down people.

According to reports, at least 300 people were reportedly on the spot when the accident happened. The death toll may be higher. Two such major accidents in the recent history of the railways was in 2013. The first one was on August 19, when the Sahara-Patna Rajya Rani Superfast Express ran over pas-

Rly minister to return from US immediately

Hours after the Amritsar train accident on Friday, Railway Minister Piyush Goyal cancelled all his engagements in the US and said he was immediately returning to India. The minister, who is in the US to receive the prestigious Carnot prize for his contribution towards sustainable energy solutions, said railways was proving all possible assistance at the accident site. PTI

Oppn accuses Sidhu wife of leaving site soon after accident

The train accident took a political turn with the Opposition accusing the state's Congress government for lapses in allowing celebrations near railway tracks. Punjab minister Navjot Sidhu's wife faced allegations of leaving the site after the incident. Navjot Kaur Sidhu, the chief guest at the event, told media that her priority was to ensure the injured receive proper treatment. PTI sengers disembarking from another train at the Dhamara station in Bihar, killing 35 persons and the second one was on November 2 when the Alappuzha-Dhanbad Express ran over passengers of another train. The passengers had jumped onto the adjacent track due to a rumor that their train was on fire. The incident claimed 10 lives.

The railways said the reasons behind these deaths include trespassing, violating safety and cautionary instructions, avoiding overbridges and using mobile phones while crossing railway tracks.

Fencing of tracks may not be a viable option as railways cover 67,312 kilometres across the country. Among the 16 railway zones, Northern Railway is the most affected by such deaths on tracks, claiming 7,908 lives, followed by Southern Railway with a toll of 6,149 in the last three years. Though railway zones have launched various awareness campaigns, they seem to be having no effect.

Friday's accident comes close on the heels of seven people getting killed on October 10, when the New Farakka Express derailed near Raebareilly. In April 13, children were killed in Kushinagar after a train hit a school van. Critics claim that one of the major reasons for accidents may be staff crunch as the railways is yet to fill vacancies of around 1,41,000 safety staff.

After the Raebareilly incident, the railways came out with numbers claiming that between 2014 and 2018, since the Narendra Modi government took charge, the number of train collisions came down by 52.4 per cent compared to the average per year figures between 2004 and 2014 of the UPA regime.

Sabarimala row: 2 women reach hilltop

But devotees stop them from entering sanctum sanctorum

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA
Sabarimala (Kerala), 19 October

Ending hours-long drama and tense moments at Sabarimala, two women reached the hilltop on Friday but had to return before reaching the sanctum sanctorum following massive protests by Lord Ayyappa devotees. A large number of devotees blocked the young women and a police team escorted them at Valiya Nadappandal, the queue complex located a few metres away from the holy "pathinettam padi" (the 18 sacred steps), leading to the sanctum sanctorum.

The women were identified as a reporter from Hyderabad in her late 20s and an activist from Kerala. The devotees protested against the entry of women of menstrual age group into the hill shrine.

Tension was defused after the women agreed to return as the state government made it clear it did not want to take them to the Sannidhanam, the temple complex, by using force against the protesting devotees. The firm stand taken by the "tantri" (head priest) that he would close the temple if the women were escorted into the sanctum sanctorum also persuaded them to return following instructions of the police. Though the women had earlier insisted they should reach the shrine, police later convinced them about the gravity of the situation and conveyed the stand taken by the government

The firm stand taken by the temple head priest that he would close the temple if the two women were escorted into the sanctum sanctorum persuaded the two to return and the head priest. If they had reached the shrine, they would have been the first women from the menstruating age group to visit the Lord Ayyappa temple at Sabarimala after the Supreme Court order permitting women of all age groups to enter the shrine. Inspector General S

Sreejith, who led the police team escorting the women, later told reporters the women have expressed their willingness to go back. "The tantri has informed me that he will close the temple and go if the women enter the shrine complex," he said.
