Innovative Social credit delivery in India through embedded finance for furthering financial inclusion, enhancing financial literacy and bridging the digital divide

The Story – How it began

Sibin Das
UBER Driver

Sibin Das, an UBER driver from Ernakulam had to renew his insurance (INR 28,000 /USD 360) for his car which is his primary income source.

His credit score ( 550) is not a prime score for many banks to process the loan internally.

Being a cab driver, his monthly income was around INR 30,000. Taking care of household expenses and insurance amount was not feasible.

Other NBFC require some security.

Money lenders are highly unorganized – high rate/ unethical collection

Lata Khatakdhod, lives in suburbs of Mumbai.

Being a house help, she is not covered under the minimum wage act.

Employed in 4-5 house and earn around INR 3,000 – 4,000 (USD 60) per house hold.

With the onset of monsoon, she wanted INR 30,000 to fix her leaky roof of the 100 sq ft room. Being a New to Credit customer, she does not have a credit track record

She uses a smart phone but only for call and WhatsApp

Supply Credit Gap – Low Income household

Low income households face a huge challenge to access credit – opportunity for small ticket loans

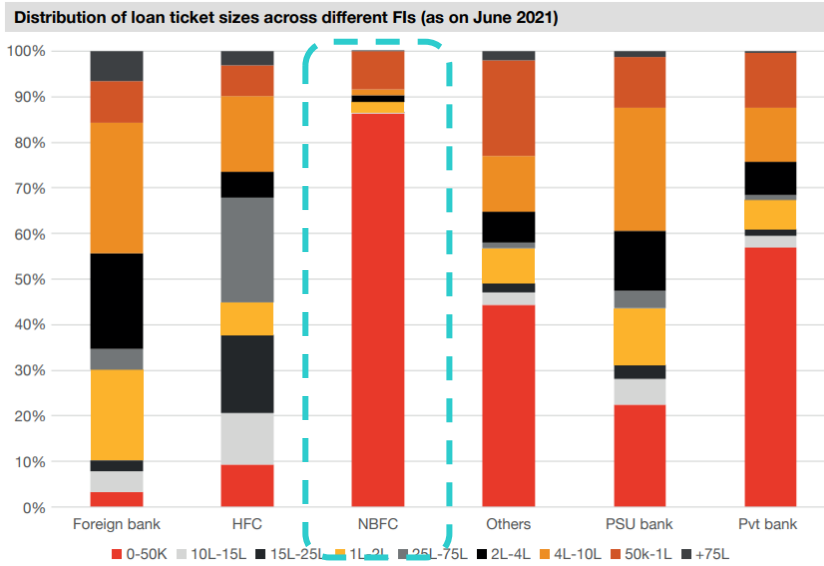

Urbanisation , access to information an employment opportunities driving consumer demand and spending

Small ticket – Big Potential

80% of loans disbursed by NBFC are below INR 50K

Upto INR 50K is the sweet credit spot

97% of the household reported a decline in household income during covid-19.

Growth in personal loan attributed to the increased need coming in from education and medical expenses.

Huge potential for smaller ticket size, customized product offering and faster turnaround.
