Front line staff to get Covid jabs later this week; 77 centres added

MM BUREAU

New Delhi/February 03
State health minister Satyendar Jain said on Tuesday that the ongoing Covid-19 inoculation drive — which currently covers health workers — will be opened to front line workers this week even as authorities increased the number of vaccination centres from 106 to 153 as well as the number of vaccination days from four to six days a week.

Jain, however, did not mention the exact day when the vaccination will begin for the city's estimated 600,000 front line workers, including the police and municipal employees, among others, directly engaged in Covid-19 management in some way. About 338,011 front line workers have been asked to take the jab in a registration drive that is still underway.

Meanwhile, Delhi gave a boost to its vaccination drive. So far, Covid-19 vaccines in the national capital were administered on Mondays, Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays. From Wednesday, it will become a six-day drive (from Monday to Saturday), a senior health official said on condition of anonymity.

But the turnout rate in Delhi witnessed a sharp fall on Tuesday with only 9,357 of a targeted 18,300 (at scaled-up capacity) beneficiaries getting vaccinated. The turnout rate of 51.15% was the lowest since January 19, the second day of vaccination when it was 43.8%.

On Tuesday, Delhi also reported 17 cases of adverse effects following immunisation (AEFI), of which none was severe in nature, government officials said.

Several government officials attributed the low turnout to fewer people turning up at new centres because of lack of awareness about them, said officials. However, other government officials said turnout at some of the existing vaccination centres have reached a saturation point.

"That is why the government should start vaccinating front line workers now, along with health workers, to fill up the gap," said a health department official.

For instance, the vaccine centre at Maulana Azad Medical College, which witnessed a turnout of around 70% over the past one week, saw only 18 beneficiaries on Tuesday.

"There are apprehensions among beneficiaries, especially in view of several cases of mild fever and AEFI (adverse event following immunization) that have emerged in its ongoing awareness drive, the government should stress that the vaccine is for prevention and India is yet to witness a second wave like several other countries such as the US and the UK," said some of them — such as Lok Nayak Hospital in the public sector and BL Kapoor Hospital in the private sector — have more than one centre now, said the health department official cited above.

"This scaling up was needed to increase the coverage at a faster rate among health workers. There will be need for more capacity building to accommodate front-line workers, whose numbers are more," said a second health department official.

The number of health workers in the city is estimated at 300,000 by the Delhi government, of which around 240,000 registered for the Covid-19 vaccination and 73,953 health workers have taken the jab.

The aim at this stage should be to reach out to more categories of beneficiaries.

Meanwhile, Delhi gave a boost to its vaccination drive. So far, Covid-19 vaccines in the national capital were administered on Mondays, Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays. From Wednesday, it will become a six-day drive (from Monday to Saturday), a senior health official said on condition of anonymity. But the turnout rate in Delhi witnessed a sharp fall on Tuesday with only 9,357 of a targeted 18,300 beneficiaries getting vaccinated.

People belonging to other priority groups, who want to get vaccinated at the earliest, should be given the opportunity now," said Dr Suneeza Garg, director professor, community medicine, Maulana Azad Medical College, and member, Lancet Covid-19 Commission and Vaccination Task Force for India.

Shubh Muhurat, Savdhan: Feb 16 to have too many weddings in Delhi-NCR

MM BUREAU

New Delhi/February 03
Expert February 16 to be a day to watch with the sound of dhol and shehnai. Ask why? It's an auspicious day for weddings, and denizens are making the most of it! "The date is auspicious because it's an 'ausad' day," I've to myself solemnize two-three weddings, all lined up for the same day," says Delhi-based pandit Ram Meher Sharma, adding, "February 16 is Basant Panchami, and yeh din apne apne mekha bada parv hai. That's why many people are preferring to get married on this day. Yeh ek bahut bada mehvaar pocha hai. Yeh hai February 16, and that's the next auspicious date for weddings."

The number of requests have been so many for this date that now we are simply routing the clients to other artists or refusing to take in any more bridal make-up bookings!"

Delhi HC takes notice of trash dumped by sanitation staff on streets

Our Correspondent/New Delhi/February 03

The Delhi high court on Tuesday asked the North Delhi Municipal Corporation why police cases were not filed against sanitation workers who dumped garbage on streets of Model Town last month.

Sanitation workers of the civic body were on strike for most of January, demanding their salaries, which they claim they had not been paid since October. The matter was resolved on Saturday, when the corporation released the pending wages. Justice Sanjeev Sachdeva directed the North MCD deputy commissioner to virtually join the proceedings in the matter on February 5, if the strike is not over by then and garbage collection work has not commenced. "If strike is over and work is going on, then he need not join," the court said.

Delhi HC seeks Centre's reply on plea challenging WhatsApp privacy policy

MM BUREAU

New Delhi/February 03
The Delhi high court on Wednesday sought the response of the Centre and WhatsApp on a plea challenging the latter's new privacy policy. The plea is seeking directions to the authorities to provide users with an option to opt out of sharing users' personal data with Facebook, as mandated in the updated policy. A bench of Chief Justice DN Patel and justice Jyoti Singh issued notices to the ministry of electronics and information technology and WhatsApp on the plea which has contended that the new policy is in violation of right to privacy of an individual. The plea has also sought formulation of guidelines, rules and regulations for safeguarding the privacy of the citizens. It has said that the "Assures in law with respect to data are quite conspicuous and a framework to regulate the same is the need of the hour". On Wednesday, additional solicitor general (ASG) Chetan Sharma said the Centre has sent out questionnaires to WhatsApp on various issues, seeking answers. He also said a joint parliamentary committee is looking into the matter. The PIL, filed by Seema Singh and Meghna Singh, said, "Social media in recent years has been used by billions of people around the world and millions of Indians today are dependent on WhatsApp. Therefore information which is generally personal is shared at an enormous level. This information is susceptible to being misused if the social media giant decides to either sell or exploit the information, sensitive to the users, to any third party." Earlier, a law student, Chaitanya Rohilla, had challenged the new privacy policy which has now been pushed to May after backlash on its terms and conditions. Earlier, WhatsApp had made it mandatory for the users to accept.

Delhi's minimum temp rises by 3° today, rain likely : IMD

MM BUREAU

New Delhi/February 03
As minimum temperature in the national Capital rose by nearly three degrees on Wednesday, the city is likely to experience rain. Minimum temperature is expected to be around 9 degrees Celsius on Wednesday. The minimum temperature in the city on Tuesday rose to 6.2°C, as against 5.3°C on Monday.

A western disturbance is likely to bring light rain to the city. The temperature is likely to dip after the western disturbance moves away, experts said.

The maximum temperature has gone up due to an approaching western disturbance. This is the highest temperature recorded since December.

There is a change in wind direction due to the western disturbance. Winds are variable blowing over land and not bringing cold air from the hills. The wind speed is also low during the day," said Kuldip Srivastava of the India Meteorological Department (IMD).

"Both minimum and maximum temperatures are likely to fall by 2-3 degrees Celsius from February 5, when the disturbance moves away," said Srivastava.

An induced cyclonic circulation lying over central India from February 3 to 5," it added.

Under the influence of these systems, widespread light to moderate rainfall or snow with isolated thunderstorm, lightning and hail is likely to occur over the western Himalayan region till February 5.

Heavy rainfall or snowfall is also expected to take place over Jammu and Kashmir on February 3 and 4, and over Himachal Pradesh on February 4.

Light to moderate rain is likely over Delhi and the National Capital Region (NCR) on February 4 and over Uttar Pradesh and Bihar on February 4 and 5," Srivastava said.

Meanwhile, air quality remained in the "very poor" category with the hourly Air Quality Index at 356 Wednesday morning. On Tuesday, it was 364.

Schools kick off prep as parents, students welcome exam schedule

MM BUREAU

New Delhi/February 03
With the Central Board of Secondary Education (CBSE) releasing the 2021 exam time table for classes 10 and 12 on Tuesday, almost three months in advance, principals and teachers across the national capital said it was a welcome step as students can now prepare well for exams. The board also announced that class 12 students will have exams in two shifts — morning and afternoon.

While CBSE had announced in December that exams would be conducted between May and June 2021, on Tuesday it released the date sheet for the board examinations, which would begin on May 4 for both class 10 and 12 students. While exams of Class 10 students will end on June 7, those of Class 12 students will end on June 11.

Of the total 2,168 schools in Delhi, a majority is affiliated to the CBSE and board exams for classes 10 and 12 are usually held in February. Due to the pandemic and the subsequent shift to online education, the board had also reduced the syllabus for the academic year by 30%.

Manju Sethi, principal of Bluebells School International in Kailash Colony, said conducting exams in two shifts won't be an issue. "As per the notification by the CBSE, exams in the second shift are of subjects not offered to students in CBSE schools abroad. That means these while wearing masks." Most students were happy with the schedule. "Commerce students have ample time between major subjects and we are happy with the date sheet. Also, unlike previous years when the date sheet was announced less than two months before exams, this time we have nearly three months in hand. We know how much time there is between papers so we can devise a study routine accordingly," said Twisha Kacker, 15, a class 12 student of The Indian School.

Sukhbir Singh Yadav, principal of Sarvodaya Vidyalaya Rohini, Sector 3, said since the Delhi government had allowed class 10 and 12 students to return to schools for preparations, teachers can plan the lessons accordingly and as per the needs of students.

The class 10 date sheet has days between major subjects. Same is the case with class 12 students. However, for certain subject combinations, there are no gaps. For instance, students who have opted for both biology and commerce, there would be no gap day," he said.

Yadav also said since exams would be held during peak summer in Delhi, the timings could have been different. "Students will be wearing masks, so it would have been better if the morning shift started at 8am instead of 10.30am and the afternoon shift at 3pm instead of 2.30pm," he said.
