Arrested IAS ex-officer cleared 82 of 100 fake proposals: Cops

ADITI RAJA

VADODARA, DECEMBER 1

FORMER IAS officer B D Ninama, arrested earlier this week in a case related to setting up six bogus government offices in Dahod district, allegedly cleared 82 of the 100 proposals the fake offices were sanctioned to siphon grants worth Rs 18.6 crore under the tribal sub-plan between 2018 and 2023, investigation has revealed.

The special team of Dahod district police has now embarked on a trail of the transactions made by the accused in over 20 bank accounts, some of which are in Vadodara city. The police also said that the original government departments whose namesake bogus offices were set up had connived to create fake proposals to siphon money and many other government officials are under the

Speaking to The Indian Express, Dahod SP Rajdeepsinh Zala said, "One of the most curious aspects of this racket is that while six bogus offices were set up under the watch of Ninama, the original offices did not see any movement of project files during that time... So, when we investigated why the original departments did not send any proposal but the bo-gus offices did, we realised that some of the officers are in connivance with the racketeers."

The Dahod district police had on Wednesday arrested the fourth accused in the case - Ishwar Kolcha, an executive engineer in the panchavat minor irrigation department, whose name cropped up after Ninama's arrest. Zala said that Kolcha was arrested as he prepared the proposals for the bogus office of the minor irrigation department and even "carried the proposals" to Ninama for approval.

He added that following Ninama's questioning, it became clear that he had cleared 82 of the 100 proposals during his tenure as the project administrator. "We can only imagine how the project administrator approved so many proposals from the bogus offices without raising an eyebrow. Investigation has made it clear that Ninama was totally involved in the scam...'

According to the police, the fake offices in Dahod were run by conman Sandeep Rajput, who was arrested on October 26 by the Chhota Udepur police for diverting Rs 4.16 crore in government grants by setting up a fake office of the executive engineer for irrigation projects in Bodeli. Seven persons, including Raiput and his accomplices Abu Bakr Saiyyed and

The three conmen carried out a similar operation in Dahod, where the scam was unearthed when a special investigation team was probing the Chhota Udepur case.

Ankit Suthar, were arrested in the case

"We have established that Ninama met co-accused Abu Bakr Saiyed first in 2016 during his posting in Chhota Udepur (in 2016) but whether they experimented with the bogus office in Dahod or there has been a previous money trail in 2016 will only be clear once we examine the flow of funds," Zala

He added that several officers and clerks of the tribal district's project administration department were rounded up for recording statements and that there are "many suspects".

"Many senior department officials are being questioned... We are also initiating the process of freezing 20 bank accounts belonging to the accused that we have come across so far. Our teams have visited Vadodara city as many accounts are from banks located there.'

The Dahod police currently has the custody of Ankit Suthar, Kolcha and Ninama. The police are yet to arrest Abu Bakr Saiyyed, who is admiited to a hospital wth a heart ailment.

According to the FIR, Rajput had posed as the executive engineer in all the six offices in Dahod. Three of the fake offices were used to siphon grants worth Rs 11.74 crore received under the tribal sub-plan in 2020-21 alone.

Union minister says need to expand nuclear energy to have green energy round-the-clock

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE GANDHINAGAR, DECEMBER 1

CITING THAT affordable storage of renewable energy was one of the major challenges before India to achieve energy transition, Union ilster of New and Kenewable Energy, Kaj Kuma Singh, on Friday said that till the storage cost decreases, Indianeeds to expand its nuclear energy capacity and develop the ecosystem accordingly.

Singh was speaking to mediapersons on the sidelines of a conference, 'Energy Transition in India – Road Travelled and Opportunity Ahead' organised by Gujarat energy department as part of the Vibrant Gujarat Global Summit, 2024.

Singh inaugurated the two-day conference in the presence of state Energy and Finance Minister Kanu Desai in Gandhinagar. The conference is being attended by around 250 people in the power and renewable energy sectors of India and abroad.

Asked what challenges India faces in achieving energy transition, Singh said the challenge is three-

Citing affordable storage as one of the three challenges, Singh said, "Round-the-clock renewable energy can be provided only if we can storeit. The manufacturing (capacity) in storage is less in the world. Therefore, its cost is very high. To increase the storage capacity in India, we have got production-linked

"Till the storage cost does not go down, we cannot give round-the-clock renewable energy. In that case, we need coal or nuclear (energy)... We need to expand our nuclear energy and then we can have round-the-clock green energy. Then we will reduce coal (based power)... For nuclear energy, we need to build ecosystem," he added.

According to Singh, India's installed capacity of nuclear energy is 7000 MW and they want to increase upto 100 GW.

In this context, Singh said that India is also working on green hydrogen fuel sector and will become a global leader in manufacturing the same.

The second challenge he cited was availability of equipment to build manufacturing capacity to make the 'Make in India' model work. Singh said the government is aiming to have solar cell module built in India. The third challenge Singh cited was expanding the network of transmission lines in the country.

On the impact of climate change and energy transition, Singh said India's percapitaemission is among the lowest in the world. "Our per capita emission is about 2.19 tonne per annum. The global average is 6.8 tonne per capita per annum. So, ours is one of the lowest in the world. Despite that we have emerged as a leader in energy transition. We are the only country that has achieved its nationally-determined contribution nine years in advance.

On phasing out coal-based power plants in India, Singh said, "I call it a diversionary topic floated by developed countries. Because it does not matter where the emission is coming from. What is important is who is emitting how much... India is emitting onethird of the global average. In legacy emission, 80 per cent contribution is from developed countries. Our contribution is 3 per cent while India has 17 per cent population (of the world)."
