● RULING PARTY SAYS IT RESPECTS THE APEX COURT

Aim was transparency, says BJP after verdict on electoral bonds

LIZ MATHEW & VIKAS PATHAK
New Delhi, February 15

REACTING TO THE Supreme Court order striking down the electoral bonds scheme, the BJP said the Centre was only attempting to move towards greater transparency in political funding.

“This decision was undertaken with the laudable objective of transparency in electoral funding and reducing cash influence... Those who give donations say it is good if some secrecy is maintained. This isn't unnatural. If another government comes, it could go after them. So, if someone is honestly doing business, we thought let them do so,” BJP leader Ravi Shankar Prasad said, addressing a press conference at the party headquarters.

He added that the BJP was reading the judgment, running into hundreds of pages, carefully and would come out with a detailed response later, Prasad said, adding that the party respected the Court.

Off the record, party leaders said while the SC order was a setback, particularly “a moral one”, the BJP did not expect much of an impact on the ground.

The Opposition may use the revelations of donors and recipients which will come out now as ammunition to attack the government, BJP leaders said, particularly if some of the donors were found to be corporates seen as having gained unduly under the Modi government or to be involved in irregularities.

However, the BJP believes that in public perception, it might not skew the scale too much as the world of political funding has always been opaque, and ruling parties have always benefited more.

“The verdict will not have any major impact on the electorate nor will it hit our resources badly. But certainly, the Opposition would use it to attack the government,” a senior BJP leader and MP said.

At the press conference, Prasad stressed that the scheme was part of attempts “to make the electoral process transparent”. Instead, he took a swipe at the Opposition, particularly the Congress, saying the BJP did not need any lessons from it.

WHAT THE FIVE-JUDGE BENCH SAID

■ ‘Political party’ is a relevant political unit... right to information about candidate also applicable to parties

■ Information on political funding would enable voter to assess correlation between policy making and financial contributions

■ Electoral bonds provide economically resourced contributors, who already have a seat at the table, selective anonymity vis-à-vis the public and not the party

■ Centre’s argument that scheme protects confidentiality of the contributor akin to secret ballot is erroneous

■ Scheme does not provide any regulatory check to prevent trading of bonds, though

Clause 14 states that bonds shall not be eligible for trading

■ Not the least restrictive means to achieve the purpose of curbing black money in the electoral process. There are other alternatives

Oppn hopes to flag ‘quid pro quo’

MANOJ CG
New Delhi, February 15

THE SUPREME COURT’S decision striking down the electoral bond scheme has given the beleaguered opposition INDIA bloc — riven by dissension — an unexpected and much-needed political talking point.

The SC order has asked the State Bank of India to submit the details of bonds purchased since April 12, 2019, to the Election Commission within three weeks. The poll watchdog has to make public the information by March 13, which is when the campaign for the Lok Sabha polls would be gathering pace.

The timing, therefore, is crucial for the Opposition parties, which hope to frame the issue as one of corruption — on which they find themselves at the receiving end.

Incidentally, at least three regional parties — the BJD, DMK and Trinamool Congress — have received almost all their funding through bonds, which ensured anonymity of the donors till now. However, by sheer volume, the revelations regarding the BJP are expected to overpower the others.

Several Opposition leaders felt that while the larger issue of the citizens’ right to know is significant, it is more of an academic debate from a political point of view. Hence, they believe, the talking point should be on the quid pro quo aspect, and hope that the details of the donors and the recipient when revealed would prove a clincher.

Congress leader Rahul Gandhi, who has been leading the party charge against the BJP on corruption, said the verdict

The timing is crucial for opposition parties, which hope to frame the issue as one of corruption, on which they find themselves at the receiving end was another proof of Prime Minister Narendra Modi’s “corrupt policies”. The BJP “had made electoral bonds a medium for taking bribes and commission”, he said.

Former Rajasthan chief minister Ashok Gehlot said, “The bond is the biggest scandal since Independence. ₹5,000 crore se adhik ke bond... Kinse kya saude kiye gaye, unke badle main kya bond liye gaye hai (What deals were made with whom, what were the benefits sought in return), what concessions were given to Indian and foreign companies... nobody knows...”

The Congress held a press conference on the issue, with spokesperson Pawan Khara asking: “Now that the massive corrupt mechanism by the Modi government has been exposed by the Supreme Court itself, will the government send the ED to probe the electoral bond scam?”

Former finance minister and senior Congress leader P Chidambaram said: “The fact that the BJP cornered nearly 90% of the donations by corporates and high net worth individuals will be exposed now. Let the world know who gave money, when the money was given, and to which party it was given. The people will ask why the money was given to a political party.”

Other Opposition parties were as upbeat. “This judgment has restored democracy and the level playing field for all political parties. It has also ensured the common man’s faith in the system,” DMK chief and Tamil Nadu CM MK Stalin said.

The CPI(M), which was one of the petitioners, said it had always argued that the scheme legalises corruption.

After a sizzling debut, Sarfaraz says ‘burden off my shoulders’

DEVENDRA PANDEY
Mumbai, February 15

SARFARAZ KHAN COULD NOT hold his tears back when the legendary Anil Kumble handed him his maiden Test cap, just before the start of the third Test between India and England in Rajkot on Thursday. Beside him was his wife, who too was overcome with emotions. Then he ran towards his father, Naushad, the most influential figure of his life, and hugged him. “I will cry the whole day when I play for my country,” he had once said.

As the day progressed, Sarfaraz pushed some of the English bowlers to the verge of tears too, as his robust 62 off 66 balls, brutally cut short by a run out, played a big role in helping his country post 326 for five.

Throughout his knock, he showed the daring, composure and will, virtues that showed he belongs to the Test level. The England bowlers tested him with everything they could — pace and seam bowling, spin of various hues and funky field placings — but he had an answer to every question they posed to him. Like he had an answer to every hurdle that he had to overcome to reach this far.

Sarfaraz, 26, is a fascinating tale of passion and persistence. For nearly 15 years, he would wake up every day at 5 am so he could reach Cross Maidan for practice at 6.30 am. He would spend hours honing his skills on the dusty pitches.

On days he could not go, he and his brother Musheer, India’s second-highest run-getter in the recent U-19 World Cup, would practice on a special cricketing pitch Naushad had prepared outside his home.

Naushad would spend hours dishing out throw-downs, paying opposition teams to come play friendly games in which Sarfaraz would bat the whole innings regardless of whether the team lost or not.

Life was not easy for the Khans. Naushad, who once sold toffees and cucumbers in trains and also sold track-pants after migrating from Azamgarh in UP to supplement the meagre income he got as a Class 4 employee with Western Railway, once spoke about what Sarfaraz had told him in the past. “We came from the slums, used to stand in queues for the toilet where my sons would be slapped and overtaken. We came from nothing and will go back to nothing. Sarfaraz told me one day, ‘Abbu, so what if this (playing for India) doesn’t happen. We can always go back to selling track-pants.’”

SARFARAZ KHAN

Scored 62 (66 balls)

India ended Day 1 at 326/5

All those memories would have flashed across Sarfaraz’s mind when he waited for nearly four hours for his turn to bat. “I was padded for four hours but told myself that I have kept so much patience, time to keep more,” he would reveal at the press conference later.

But when the moment to bat came, he showed no nerves. “It was my dream to play for India in front of him. My father wasn’t coming to the ground initially. But some people requested him and he came to witness this moment. I feel some burden is off my shoulders now I haven’t let my father’s efforts go to waste,” Sarfaraz said.

His morning, though, began like any other, listening to the title track of the movie, ‘Dangal’. The song speaks of struggle and inspirations, and he could relate.

Sarfaraz’s struggles continued on the field too. He sweated to break the consistency code, and even when he did, he had to wait for his turn to come, despite three seasons of Bradmanesque numbers. He was picked in India’s squad to tour Bangladesh in December 2022. But was dropped when the senior players returned. The word went around he is not comfortable dealing with pace and bounce. An indifferent IPI didn’t help his cause.

There were times when both the father and son seemed frustrated with the supposedly raw deal. But the shayari-loving Naushad would advise his son: “Rakh hausla woh manzar bhi aayega, pyaase ke paas samundar bhi aayega (Keep the resolve, that sight will appear; the sea will come to the thirsty)” There is another favourite line of his: “Thak kar na baith ae manzil ke musafir. Manzil bhi milegi aur milne ka mazaa bhi aayega (Don’t sit tired, oh traveller, you will not only reach your destination but also experience the joy and fun of getting there).”

Every struggle now seems worth the struggle. If he can continue this fairytale, it’s his track-pants and jerseys that would be sold like hot cakes in markets all over the country. And more tears of joy would be shed on the field, and in the Khan household.

आयोग के मुताबिक यह बच्चों के मानवाधिकार हनन का प्रमाणित मामला है। यह महिला कई बार गिरफ्तार भी हो चुकी है। लेकिन राज्य की सरकारी मशीनरी बच्चों का शोषण नहीं रोक पा रही है। जिस उम्र में इन बच्चों का स्कूल जाना चाहिए उसमें उन्हें जीवन के अनैतिक तरीके अपनाने की मजबूर किया जा रहा है। आयोग ने राज्य सरकार से पूछा है कि क्या उसने अपने स्तर पर अभिचारियों की संख्या के बारे में कोई सर्वेक्षण कराया है। आयोग ने माना है कि बेशक देश में भीख मांगने पर कोई कानूनी रोक नहीं है।
