BIG FISH, BIG SCALE

If four firms come to dominate the Indian media market, what will that mean for everyone?

VANITA KOHLI-KHANDEKAR

Pune, 9 November

ookingback, January 2007 was a defining month for the media industry worldwide. That was when Netflix started its video streamingservice, placing a clear bet that the world of the internet was going to be more powerful and rewarding than the physical world.

Till then, Netflixwas a company that sent its subscribers DVDs by mail. Streaming changed viewing habits from appointment watching to impulse watching, and disrupted not only television (it "dropped" entire seasons at once) but also movie making (films began to release on streaming platforms). Originals came soon after, starting with the House of Cards in 2013.

Allat aprice of $12 amonth, against the $50 and above that most mainstream cable firms charged.

Soon a new set of "media" players emerged. Apple (1.46 billion users, $383 billion revenue), Alphabet (parent of Google and YouTube; 4.3 billion users, $283 billion revenue), Facebook (3.88 billion users, $127 billion revenue) and Amazon ($514 billion revenue) began investing in films, TV shows, and web series. Whether it was to sell more products (Amazon) or to get people to search more (Google), they needed huge audiences across geographies, technologies, languages, tastes, formats, and devices.

It became evident that in this new entertainment economy, those with the deepest pockets would have the most negotiating power. That is why in 2018 Rupert Murdoch chose to sell Twenty First Century Fox's entertainment assets, including Star India, to The Walt Disney Company. Around the same time Zee found itself in the throes of a debt crisis and decided to sell.

Now, unconfirmed reports say Reliance Industries might buy Disney Star, though industry insiders say another prominent Indian conglomerate and a large South Indian media giant could also be in the fray. The fact is, there is no confirmation that Disney istalking to anyone for the sale of its India operations. However, if Disney Starwere to come under Reliance's fold, that would make the Mukesh Ambani-led conglomerate India's second largest media company after Google. Already, Reliance's Independent Media Trust has a majority stake in Network18, which owns Viacom18 (Colors, Nick) and JioCinema, among other properties.

Meanwhile Punit Goenka, chief executive officer (CEO) of Zee Entertainment Enterprises, has beenallowed back into the company by a Securities Appellate Tribunal ruling last week. The tribunal quashed an order by the Securities and Exchange Board of Indiathathad barred Goenka from holding a managerial position.

There are reports of mumblings fromwithin Sony on whether it is time to look for another CEO. In all probability, the

Sony-Zee merger, announced in December 2021, should culminate this month, creating the fourth largest media firm in India

More to the point, if both deals go through, the Indian media market will be dominated by four companies - Google, Meta, Reliance, and Sony-Zee — across news, entertainment, and sports. Every other firm in the top 10 list is less than half their size.

The bulk of the media companies in India are in the range of ₹100 crore to ₹1,000 crore. What will that mean for the industry and its stakeholders?

Matterofscale

"While mergers and acquisitions have happened earlier, there has been nothing of such a big scale," says Shrikant Shenoy, associate vice president, Lodestar UM, a media buying agency.

Combine the broadcast (Star Plus, among 70 channels), digital (Disney+ Hotstar), and studio assets (Fox Star) of Disney with the 58 news and entertainment channels, digital properties, and the film studio that Network 18 owns. You will end up with a media conglomerate that would have a 32 per cent share of all TV viewershipin India.

That scale is something that could be looked at in various ways.

"The Zee-Sony merger had some legal impediments alongside its regulatory hurdles, but a deal of this size, with this impact, will need to be scrutinised," says Daoud Jackson, senior analyst at London-based Omdia.

Will the Competition Commission of India have something to say?

"There are too many regulatory questions," agrees another Asia-based analyst.

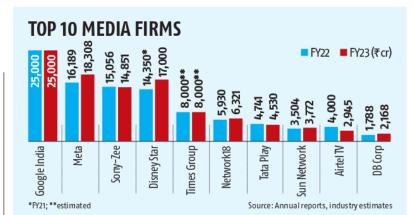

Contrary to popular perception, TV is far from dead. It reaches a massive 892 million people. Now assume Voot, JioCinema, and Disney+Hotstar are merged into one entertainment app, and you have a streaming service with more than 233 million unique visitors, according to Comscore data for June 2023. That is a reach just under half of India's largest streaming app: YouTube.

"This level of consolidation does not exist even in the United States," says the Asian analyst.

Matterofsynergy

Much of this is pure speculation. But it is already worrying advertisers, who brought in half of the ₹2.1 trillion in revenues that Indian media and entertainment businesses made in 2022.

"It is like having another Google come

In 2018, when Fox's entertainment assets were sold to Disney globally for $71.3 billion, Star India was part of the deal. It was valued at $13-15 billion. Chances are, this time it will be valued at something under $10 billion.

Though it is one of the largest media firms in India, The Walt Disney Company needs the money. "It is really about medium-term profitability," says Daoud Jackson, senior analyst at Disney announced that it expects to pay Comcast's NBC Universal $8.61 billion by December 1—plus an amount to be determined in 2024—for its 33 per cent stake in Hulu. The looming burden for Disney will be to pay down $44.5 billion in debt with less cash.
