Cyient and OneStrand Inc. Announce Partnership to Offer Interactive Technical Publication Solutions

East Hartford, Connecticut, USA, May 20, 2019: Cyient, a global provider of engineering, manufacturing, geospatial, network, digital, and operations management solutions, signed a partnership agreement with OneStrand Inc. to offer interactive technical publication solutions. This agreement combines Cyient’s global reach and long history in authoring, illustrating, designing, and converting technical publications with OneStrand’s world leading S1000D software and technical services. Cyient now has the capability to deliver technical data to global customers in the aerospace, defense, and transport industries in a variety of formats based on client needs, whether print or electronic delivery. In addition, clients will be able to leverage the new services across the product lifecycle and better manage engineering technical data from initial creation to archiving.

“We are excited about partnering with OneStrand and their world leading S1000D offering,” noted Anand Parameswaran, SVP of Cyient’s Aerospace & Defense business unit. Cyient has made a significant investment in building our digital solutions portfolio. The partnership with OneStrand allows us to enhance our portfolio further to solve greater problems for our clients.”

“This partnership combines the diverse, yet complementary experience and offerings of Cyient and OneStrand,” said Tammy Halter, CEO of OneStrand Inc. “We are very excited to be enabling Cyient and their customers with smart software tools to efficiently develop and deliver their technical data.” She continued on to say, “With a few simple clicks, Cyient can deliver technical data to global customers in print or any electronic delivery format the client requests.”
