Biden adds tariffs on Chinese chips, Evans

HIKE ON IMPORTS

The changes are projected to affect around $18 billion in current annual imports.

The moves are part of President Joe Biden’s most comprehensive update to tariffs imposed by his predecessor, Donald Trump.

Biden will match up rates on goods that US struggled to report during pandemic.

Additional tariffs risk increasing prices for consumers already hurting from inflation, and forcing the US to choose between inflation and jobs.

President Joe Biden is seeking to expand its tax and infrastructure packages, and increase the corporate tax rate. The move also affects the world’s largest economy and China has already reacted to it.

At a handwritten approach to trade with Beijing remaining popular with US voters.

China’s state-controlled media has criticized the move, saying it would harm US business and consumers.

The US move comes amid a global trade war between the world’s two largest economies, and US officials have repeatedly expressed their concerns about China’s efforts to dominate emerging technologies.

The move is seen as a signal that the US is serious about its trade relations with China and that it is willing to take action to address issues with the Chinese economy.

As a result, the US and China are likely to continue to face significant challenges in their ongoing trade dispute, and it is likely that further measures will be taken by both sides.

RESULTS CORNER

Alibaba Q4 profits plunge 66%, misses estimates

China’s e-commerce giant Alibaba Group saw its quarterly profit on Tuesday fall more than expected due to currency changes from its e-commerce businesses, pushing it US-listed shares down almost 14% in early trading.

This was a blow for a company that had been hoping to overtake Amazon in the global e-commerce market.

Foxconn’s profit weakens

Supplier Foxconn reported a 72.7% drop in Q4 profits, blamed on strong demand for Apple’s products, particularly in China, which is its largest market.

Vodafone annual profit outlook lowers

Vodafone reported a 2.5% rise in organic earnings for 2023, meeting market forecasts, but it warned that it would be challenging to maintain growth in its UK market, which makes up about a third of its total revenue.

Sony posts 7% fall in annual profit

Sony Corp, a diversified conglomerate, reported a 7% fall in annual profit for the fiscal year ended March 31, 2023, hit by a stronger yen and a one-off tax benefit last year.

Pak to privatise most state-owned firms: PM

Prime Minister Shehbaz Sharif on Tuesday announced plans to gradually privatise all state-owned enterprises, with the exception of state-owned Pakistan International Airlines and Pakistan Telecommunication Corporation, and the move will be reviewed in three years.

The announcement came after Sharif headed a review meeting of the privatization forum of making state-owned enterprises, according to a statement from his office, which discussed a roadmap for privatization.

The statement added that all state-owned enterprises will be privatized, including those that are being privatized.

The announcement came a day after an 18-month period expired for bids in a new long-term, extended fiscal schedule following Pakistan’s completion of a $3.1 billion, mid-term arrangement.
