EKI Secures Science-Based Targets Initiative (SBTi) Backing for Ambitious 2030 Emission Targets

Indore, [January 20, 2025]: EKI Energy Services Ltd. (EKI), a leading climate advisory and carbon offsetting firm, has received approval from the Science-Based Targets initiative (SBTi) for its ambitious emission reduction targets aimed at aligning with the 1.5°C climate scenario. This validation from SBTi accentuates EKI’s commitment to science-based action and positions it as a regional leader in setting standards for corporate sustainability and climate responsibility.

Under SBTi's standards EKI has committed to a 42% reduction in its Scope 1 and Scope 2 greenhouse gas (GHG) emissions by 2030, using 2023 as its base year in the near term and will also set ambitious net zero target in future in line with global 1.5 degrees target. ,

Additionally, EKI pledges to measure and reduce its Scope 3 emissions, which account for indirect emissions occurring across its value chain. This commitment asserts EKI’s dedication to its clients and stakeholders while reaffirming its role in fostering a global shift toward sustainability in line with the Paris Agreement.

“Our alignment with SBTi’s rigorous standards signifies a defining moment in our journey towards a low-carbon future,” said Mr. Manish Dabkara, Chairman and Managing Director, EKI Energy Services. “This commitment allows us to actively lead by example; we are walking the talk, helping both our organization and our clients drive positive environmental impact and build resilience against climate change.”

EKI’s approved target is aligned with the ambitious SBTi’s criteria for climate action, providing a dependable framework to guide its progress toward the 2030 goal. The company’s target aligns with the 1.5°C ambition, supporting global efforts to limit global temperature rise and mitigate the effects of climate change.
