S&P: Covid may set back banks’ recovery by years

ABHIJIT LEE
Mumbai, 30 June

The Covid-19 pandemic may set back the recovery of banks by years, which would hit credit flows and, ultimately, the economy, Standard and Poor’s (S&P) said on Tuesday.

It also expects non-performing assets (NPAs) to hit a fresh high this year. “In base case, we expect the NPAs to shoot up to 13-14 per cent of total loans in the fiscal year ending March 31, 2021 (FY21), compared to an estimated 8.5 per cent in the previous fiscal year,” said the rating agency in its report titled ‘Covid and Indian banks: One step forward, two steps back’ released on Tuesday.

Recent aggressive reforms, including the new bankruptcy law, have helped lenders get their bad assets and credit costs under control. A $30-billion recapitalisation also improved the situation at publicly owned banks in the last four years.

But the Covid-19 pandemic is likely to slow the resolution of bad-debt situations, saddling banks with a huge stock of bad loans next year. “We assume only about a 100 basis-point improvement in NPAs in FY22,” it added.

The effect on finance companies will be more pronounced than on banks, it said. This is mainly because some finance companies lend to weaker customers and have high reliance on wholesale funding.
