India eyes supply chain initiative with Japan and Australia to counter China

News By: PATHANIA/MINT

NEW DELHI

India, Japan and Australia have come together in light of the covid-19 crisis and the rising influence of China to launch an initiative on supply chain resilience in the Indo-Pacific region. The move aims to counter China’s dominance of global supply chains.

The meeting held by video conference was attended by Goyal, Australia’s minister for trade, tourism, and investment Simon Birmingham, and Japan’s minister of economy, trade, and industry Kajiyama Hiroshi.

“Recognizing the pressing need for maintaining resilience in supply chains. The ministers underscored the necessity and potential to enhance the economic and technological landscape, the ministers underscored the necessity and potential to enhance the economic and technological landscape,” a joint statement by the three countries.

“Australia-India-Japan Ministers met for a new initiative on Supply Chain Resilience in the Indo-Pacific, the ministers shared their intention to work towards achieving the objective through a network of reliable long-term supply chains,” the statement added.

Goyal described Australia, India and Japan as crucial players in the Indo-Pacific region, according to a joint statement by the three countries. “Recognizing the pressing need for maintaining resilience in supply chains,” the statement added.

Goyal said that the supply chain deal could be the foundation for negotiating a more ambitious bilateral free trade agreement. “The architecture of the initial deal is in the best interest of businesses, both in the US and India. And, it is in the national security,” Goyal said.
