Coconut oil price unlikely to rise during Onam festival season

Stock demand, bunker price rates

A lack of supply is in the offing during the Onam season owing to the demand slowdown on the back of a decline in the edible oil prices and a slight fall in the consumption of coconut oil. However, the prices are expected to remain firm at the current levels. A report by the ICMR confirmed the higher production of palm oil in Malaysia and Indonesia. The prices at the current levels can afford the buyers to hold their stocks for the longer period. However, the market experts advised not to buy in bulk.
