UP lineman forces dalit man to lick slippers; arrested & sacked

Vishoy Bhat, 30, was booked for forcing a man to lick his slippers at an electricity substation on Thursday.

New Delhi: A Delhi court has framed charges of murder, assault, criminal intimidation and criminal conspiracy against Vishoy Bhat, 30, who was arrested on Thursday for forcing a man to lick his slippers at an electricity substation, police said.

The incident occurred at a substation in New Delhi on Thursday afternoon, police said. Bhat and another man were present inside the substation when the victim, identified as Rahul, walked up to them and confronted them over some issue.

In a heated argument, the man allegedly hurled abuses and threatened to harm Bhat and the other man. In a fit of rage, Bhat reportedly picked up a pair of slippers and forced Rahul to lick them.

The incident came to light when the victim’s family members informed the police. They also filed a complaint against Bhat, who was arrested later.

Police said the probe into the case is underway and further action will be taken as per the law.

Police Statement

The Delhi Police's Cyberabad Police Station has registered a case under sections 304 (death by negligence), 323 (自愿性 películas), 324 (voluntary petitio­n), and 506 (criminal intimidation) of the Criminal Procedure Code (CrPC) against Bhat.

Victim Details

Rahul, the victim, is a resident of a nearby locality and was present inside the substation when the incident took place.

Investigation

Police are conducting a detailed investigation into the incident and have gathered evidence to support their allegations.

Further Action

The case is currently under investigation, and appropriate action will be taken as per the law.

This incident has raised concerns over the treatment of Dalit and other marginalized communities.

Community Reactions

Members of Dalit and socially backward communities have condemned the incident and are calling for strict action against the accused.

Legal Proceedings

The accused, Vishoy Bhat, is likely to appear in court soon to face the charges.

Police Warning

The police have reminded the public of the importance of respecting and treating all individuals with dignity and respect, irrespective of their social or economic background.

Community Calls

Activists and community leaders have called for a peaceful and constructive response to such incidents, urging for the promotion of unity and harmony among all communities.

Conclusion

The case highlights the need for stringent legal action against individuals who engage in acts of violence and discrimination, ensuring a safe and secure environment for all.
