Amit Shah said that universities should not just think about their responsibilities, but also about their rights, and take care of their responsibilities too. When you worry about your responsibilities, then somewhere your rights will be protected on their own. He called upon the youth to not just think about their responsibilities, but also about their rights.

Regarding the fight for ideas, Vice Chancellor, Prof. Yogesh Singh, observed that the importance of universities in the era of change has increased. He said that the universities have been the carriers of many movements since independence and now they can become carriers of movement of ideas. In the context of Universities of Delhi, he said that the University has maintained its relevance even after 100 years, which is a great achievement. For this, the Vice Chancellor, Prof. Yogesh Singh, said that the University has contributed a lot to the country's stability since independence. He also added that the University has been of special importance in the concept of Swaraj, Swadeshi, truth, non-violence, swadhinata and nationalism are included in the interpretation of the word "Swaraj". The then rulers limited all the systems related to Swaraj only to governance.

NEW DELHI: Prime Minister Narendra Modi on Thursday addressed the students and invited them to participate in the Swaraj Swadeshi movement. He said that the students should not only think about their responsibilities, but also about their rights. He called upon the youth to not just think about their responsibilities, but also about their rights.

People like Shashikant Singh also made sacrifices with their lives, Modi said. Singh, who died in 1971, was a member of the Indian National Army (INA) and was captured by the British during World War II. He was later executed by the British.

Amit Shah said that universities should not just think about their responsibilities, but also about their rights. Instead of continuing the fight for ideas, the universities should be present as the special guest at the University of Delhi.
