Demonetisation killed economy

If there is cashless India, the informal sector will be destroyed: Rahul Gandhi

OUR BUREAU

Continuing its offensive against the state government for management of the economy, the Congress said demonetisation was an attack on India’s unorganised sector, farmers, labourers and small traders. The Congress also accused the government of a growing attack on India’s unorganised sector. Rahul Gandhi, the party leader who addressed the media on Friday, accused the government of black money as permanent policy of the government. “Who got the benefit? The advanced technology benefited, the rules were made and the regulations were made,” Rahul Gandhi said.

In the second episode of his video series, Rahul Gandhi said: “You said, ‘There is no unorganized sector. Black money is permanent policy of the government’. Who got the benefit? The advanced technology benefited, the rules were made and the regulations were made.”

Thousand arrows

Majority of the government’s economic policies are bound to hit the informal sector, including agriculture, and thereby a large part of the unorganised sector, the Congress charged, launching its attack on the government.

Context

It stated that the informal sector’s contribution to the GDP was 50 per cent. It said that unorganised sectors, including agriculture, have been left behind by the modern age. “We need to keep the unorganised sector alive. We need to give it policies which ensure it’s survival,” Gandhi said.

What will the unorganised sector need?

Gandhi said that the unorganised sector would need a supportive policy environment to ensure its survival. It needs to be given a level playing field and it needs a promise of an assured future, the Congress leader said.

“I am saying it is important to keep the informal sector alive,” he said. Gandhi said that the government has erred in demonetisation, which has hit the informal sector and small traders hard. He added that the government’s policies and regulations have been made to benefit those with access to technology, not the unorganised sector.

Ideal combination

The Congress leader said that the unorganised sector is the main contributor to the GDP and its contribution needs to be retained.

It says tropical fruit will come into greater demand

Says it takes charges seriously and wants to make it easy for government to denounce bigotry

Global expertise

The Congress, in its communication, also said that it would adopt a different approach to address the issue of demonetisation.
