India has permitted Air India to operate flights to France and Sri Lanka, making it the first Indian carrier to operate scheduled flights to France since the COVID-19 pandemic. Air India will operate flights from Delhi to Paris and Bengaluru to Colombo. The decision was taken to boost air connectivity and facilitate travel and business. The Indian government has been working with its counterparts in France and Sri Lanka to resume air travel. Air India is currently in the process of obtaining the necessary clearances from the French government for the operation of flights to Paris. The airline is also in talks with the Sri Lankan authorities for resuming flights to Colombo. Air India's decision to operate flights to France and Sri Lanka is expected to boost tourism and business relations between India and these countries. The airline is taking all necessary precautions to ensure the safety and health of its passengers and crew members, including the implementation of strict COVID-19 protocols.
