How Covid-19 gives private airlines a chance to go global

The pandemic has led to a decision for some airlines to sell their long-haul routes. For others, a short-term focus will be needed to make the business viable.

Some analysts believe that the government should be appealing the order — and if it does, it should be filing a review petition. Whether telecom operators file a review petition or not, it is clear that the telecom operators and government are not seeing eye to eye.

The telecom operators are appealing against the order of the Telangana high court that said the operator needs to pay the amount it has been directed to pay. The government, on the other hand, is arguing that the payment should be made only after the court has decided on the matter.
